Section A:

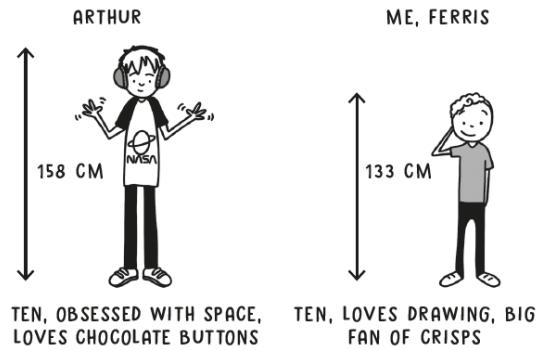

1. Character profile (writing)

Read up to P.21

Choose either Ferris or Arthur and write a character profile

You could include:

- what they look like
- what they like and dislike
- details about their family
- what's important to them
- any personality traits you have identified

2. Space Facts (reading for information)

Try this when you have read up to P.30:

Can you find the answers to the questions below using the information Arthur provides?

Page 2:

How many times bigger than Earth is The Sun?

Page 3-4:

What is the largest known star in the universe?

Page 20:

Who was the first ever person to go into space?

Page 24:

What was the name of the youngest person ever to travel into space?

3. Persuasive writing Try this when you have read up to P.30:

We learn in the first 30 pages that Ferris desperately wants Keely to become his forever sister.

Pretend you are Ferris.

Write a letter to Jasminda the social worker outlining the reasons you believe your family should adopt Keely.

4. Inference practise

Try answering these questions when you have read up to P.46:

a) Page 32: A few kids cheer. Arthur stiffens.

Why does Arthur stiffen?

b) Page 36: I nod, my mouth gaping.

Why does Ferris's mouth gape?

c) Page 40: Destiny's eyes narrow.

Why do her eyes narrow?

d) Page 42: Arthur lurches forward in his seat and starts humming.

Why do you think he does this?

e) Page 46: So why do I feel so guilty?

Why do you think Ferris feels guilty?

5. Script-writing, acting and re-acting

Read the chapter entitled ‘Space crafts’ (P.47-53) then work with a group to:

a. Re-write any extract of this chapter as a play script.

b. Act your script out. (Remember, when you don’t have a line, you need to react to anything that is being said.)

Example: (P.51-52)

(The children are in the classroom looking at the range of creative activities on offer)

Ferris: (whispering to a sad-looking Arthur, and pointing at the geoboard table) You might like that one. You could use geometry to properly map that constellation you and Miz are always pointing out. What’s it called, the tractor?

Arthur: Your mum calls it the Plough.

Destiny: (poking Ferris in the back) Actually, Ferris, its real name is Ursa Major.

(Ravi starts messing with glue guns)

Laika: (shouting) Before you all rush off, I’d like to tell you something exciting about THIS station. (She points at a sign that says MISSION PATCHES) Would anyone here like to be blasted into space?

6. Design a mission patch

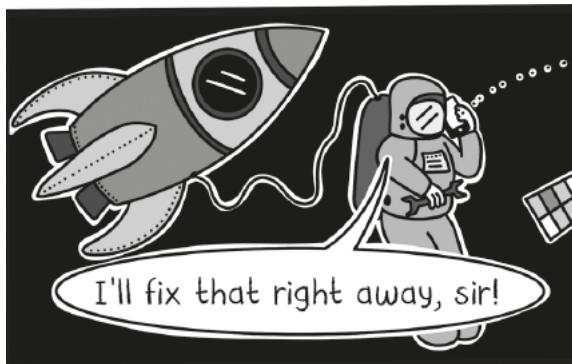

When you have read up to page 58:

Design a mission patch to go on the SWIFT XI rocket.

7. Creative writing using 'show not tell'

When you have read up to page 80:

Imagine you are an astronaut going on a spacewalk (an EVA). Describe the lead up to it, and the experience.

Think about SHOWING NOT TELLING as you write. This will give your reader a better picture of what is happening.

E.g.

Instead of I feel nervous. You could write: My fingers shake as I zip up my space suit.

Instead of It's freezing. You could write: Ice forms on my visor as soon as I step outside the rocket.

8. Comic strip it

Try this when you have read up to page 87:

Can you represent P.81-87 as a comic strip?

(There is a larger comic strip template on page 17 of this resource pack if you need one.)

9. Science experiment

When you have read up to page 105, try this science experiment (outdoors!):

Discuss with a friend the reaction that happens, and why you think it happens.

10. Short Story

Try this when you have read up to page 113:

On page 113, Sami suggests she and Ferris go and explore the woods, even though they are clearly marked 'OFF LIMITS TO CHILDREN'.

Plan and then write a short story about what happens when they are in the woods.

Use the story planner template on P.18 to help you if you want to.

11. Diary Entry

Try this when you have read up to page 130:

Write a diary entry from the point of view of Ferris. Describe the day you have just had and how you feel.

12. Smiles and metaphors:

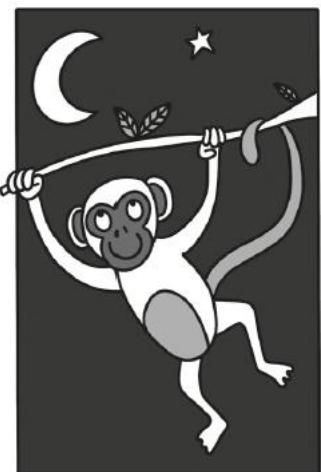

When you have read up to page 150, see if you can find the similes and metaphors on the following pages. Then come up with new ones that could be used instead.

13. Mnemonics

Read up to page 164

On P.162, Ravi tells Ferris and Arthur about the mnemonic he uses for remembering the order of the planets in our solar system from The Sun (Mercury, Venus, Earth, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune).

“MY VERY ENERGETIC MONKEY JUST SWINGS UNTIL NIGHTTIME!”

Can you make up a mnemonic sentence of your own?

Planet Order	Your mnemonic sentence
Mercury
Venus
Earth
Mars
Jupiter
Saturn
Uranus
Neptune

Extension: Research the order of the dwarf planets (starting with PLUTO) and create a mnemonic for remembering those too!

14. Predictions

Read up to page 164.

Make a prediction about what you think Sami is about to tell the group. You can write it down, or discuss it with a partner or group.

15. Dictionary work

Read up to page 173

Use a dictionary to find the definitions of these words:

Page	Word	Definition
168	GALACTIC
169	STYLIZED
170	DISTANT
171	NEBULA
172	ARROGANT

Now write three sentences, each containing one of the above words.
